DuPont™
NOMEX®
What's NOMEX® ?

NOMEX® is an advanced thermal technology from DuPont™ for end use applications where resistance to heat and flame is a vital performance characteristic. NOMEX® is used in a variety of forms as an insulating material, for hot gas industrial filtration, in auto parts, transformers and electric motors. In fibre form, NOMEX® also has superior textile properties, enabling fabric and garment manufacturers to produce comfortable, long-wearing and attractive protective clothing.

Precision Arc™ Deerskin Welding Gloves

Introducing the Cadillac of welding gloves: the Precision Arc™ deerskin, fully lined with Nomex® lining. Deerskin offers exceptional dexterity and a fine sense of touch, while a one-piece cowhide back provides durability. But the Nomex® lining is the real feature here: this is a fully flame-retardant material that will not drip or melt on exposure to direct flame, offering excellent insulating properties as well. Protects hands from heat and flame, keeping them cooler and offering assurance that gloves will not ignite around open flame or spark. Gloves are Kevlar® sewn throughout for superior spark-resistance and seam strength, with five inch cowhide gauntlet cuffs.
